

LIBRARIES

We are grateful to WebJunction for pulling together this list of 10 ways your library and community can recognize National Day of Racial Healing.

VORACIOUS READERS

Peruse these lists of inspiring books:

- ▶ A Collection of Diverse Book Lists, from WeNeedDiverseBooks.org
- ▶ Resisting Racism, a research guide from University of Washington Libraries
- ▶ ADL's Children's Literature List
- ▶ Unity, Kindness and Peace Booklist by ALA \(pdf\)

BOOK CLUB MEMBERS

- ▶ Invite your book clubs to select reading material in honor of National Day of Racial Healing. Here's how a book club in Battle Creek, Michigan got involved in the past.

LIBRARIANS AND SPECIAL EVENT COORDINATORS

- ▶ Promote relevant and inspiring books in your displays and bulletin boards. Here are some lists to spark your thinking:
 - ▶ A Collection of Diverse Book Lists, from WeNeedDiverseBooks.org
 - ▶ Resisting Racism, a research guide from University of Washington Libraries
 - ▶ ADL's Children's Literature List
 - ▶ Unity, Kindness and Peace Booklist by ALA \(pdf\)
- ▶ Invite the whole community to read the same book in honor of the National Day of Racial Healing.
- ▶ Team up with local organizations to host a community discussion, framed by the National Day of Racial Healing Conversation Guide.
- ▶ Host a film screening, musical conversation, cultural event or storytelling session.
- ▶ Dedicate your children's story hour to the National Day of Racial Healing.
- ▶ Find a space in the library for people to contribute their declarations of support for racial healing. Use a white board, chalkboard wall or poster board with the words "I will promote racial healing by" at the top and ask your patrons to fill in their ideas.
- ▶ Explore WebJunction's Access and Equity topic area, as a basis for exploring racial equity opportunities with your colleagues.
- ▶ Be sure to promote your events and efforts on social media, using the hashtag #HowWeHeal.
